

Background

As we saw with the pandemic, there was a massive increase in online mobile ordering as restaurants shut down their dining rooms and were only offering pickup. This created a new market for these restaurants as customers still use these pickup and delivery options to save time when they can't wait for a table or need food on the go. We noticed there was untapped potential by implementing a similar service at sporting events as millions of people attend sporting events across the country each day, and thus launched Champs in the Spring of 2022.

Our Mission

At Champs, our mission is simple, we want fans to not have to worry about waiting in line at concession stands, and in turn spend more time watching the event that they came to see. Hence our motto, "Less Waiting, More Watching."

About Us

Champs is an online food ordering company and food delivery service for sporting events. We understand that not every fan wants to wait in the incredibly long lines that the concession stands offer, especially when it means you will have to miss a solid amount of action at the sporting event that you likely have already paid a good deal of money to attend. To avoid these lines and save time, Champs allows attendees of sporting events to order food directly from their favorite concession stand, without leaving the comfort of their seat. Champs offers both a delivery and a pickup option, with the delivery option at a premium. The Champs app provides customers with a full menu and prices in addition to the expected wait time for both pickup and delivery. Once food is ordered on the Champs app, customers are alerted in real time when their order is being prepared and is ready. If the pickup option is selected, customers are alerted with an order number and where to go to pick up their food. If the delivery option is chosen, a Champs food runner will deliver your food directly to your seat, allowing you to not miss any of the action!
